The Retail Buyer

Has a right to expect storekeeping to be managed in his interest. If prices are depressed he should get the advantage. By watchfulness in buying and selling we keep the prices to the advantage of our customers. No old stocks are being pushed off. No hanging but the latest and best are here. The splendid completeness of the stocks was never more apparent.

And in every class of merchandise we carry quality and price are guaranteed. For Monday we call attention to some very special values as follows:

Not in this city is there a retail merchant who has dared to lower prices on their entire stock to our usual standard, yet to attract business some prices here and there are being reduced to meet us.

Few stores buy as large and as steady as we buy, for we have two stores instead of one to supply. Naturally, we get all the advantages of such buying, and we mark all merchandise low enough to sell it rapidly, constantly replenishing to keep stocks fresh.

Our buyers have been unusually fortunate this past week, and case upon case is now arriving—being unpacked, marked and put on the shelves.

THE SOCIAL WORLD

Weddings Lead All Else in Interesting Phases.

PERSONAL NOTES

The week has been an interesting one, socially. It only needs a wedding to bring out the numbers of people still in town, although the idea generally exists that the West End is almost deserted. School commencements and other demands of the domestic circle contribute largely to this idea of spending all this month in Washington, which is usually, and certainly this year is no exception, a charming period at this city-by-the-Potomac.

The Scott-Bromwell wedding was a beautiful event, with every happy condition to assist in the general result. Mrs. Scott and her daughters have been valuable additions to society here, and are extremely popular. Their hospitalities have been frequent and of the most sumptuous character. Lieut. and Mrs. Bromwell will carry to their quarters in the Yellowstone such superb gifts that their first home will be a perfect treasure house. Unless the unexpected happens, the probabilities are that this is among the last of the June weddings in which the West End can be said to be crowded. The wedding of the daughter of the young man's parents, because of his alleged delicate health and the fact that the young lady is some years his senior. These are all very good reasons, but the bride's parents are not the young man's, and the latter, who is a very comfortable idea, is the one who is acquired with others in prospect outside of the paternal pile, could manage to get along in a quietly luxurious way without other assistance. Family friends are, however, unpleasantly shading for a wedding feast. The world would be better pleased to see harmony on all sides.

Mrs. William Astor has been entertaining quite extensively of late, both with dinners and evening parties, at her apartments in Paris. During the Russian coronation in Moscow there were a good many private fashionable entertainments in honor of those events in Paris, and one of the most notable was a dinner and musical soiree which Mrs. Astor, the rich American widow, who is so famous for her gorgeous hospitality, gave in honor of Mrs. William Astor, as well as of the Russian and a Russian choir, which sang several Muscovite hymns and national songs, and there were a number of other professional musicians, including Misses, who sang three or four times. There were a great many of the swiftest of French jewels present, and among them were the Countess de Castellane (who came with her husband, Count de Castellane), and the Marquise de Talleyrand-Perigord (who was a Miss Curtis), and the Countess de Divonne, who was Miss Anderson of Washington.

One of the prettiest weddings which has ever taken place in Anacostia was celebrated Wednesday last at Emmanuel P. E. Church, Rev. W. G. Davenport was the officiating clergyman. The contracting parties were Miss Laura Johnson and Mr. William H. Scott. Miss Hattie Scott, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and Mr. John F. Scott was best man. The bride was attired in white silk, and the dress of the bridesmaid was made of white organdie, trimmed with lace. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Dr. R. A. Fyles. The ushers were Messrs. John A. Walker, B. Shelton, W. Lauman, and Lauman, who were in full Pythian uniform, the groom being connected with the Knights of Pythias, whose members attended the ceremony in a body, under the command of Capt. John H. Mills. Later a reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Scott, No. 33 Monroe street, Anacostia.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Counsellman of Baltimore are visiting their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Counsellman of Maryland avenue northeast.

Mrs. L. V. Dukehart, who has been visiting Mrs. Rose A. Martyn, 232 9th street, has returned to her home in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams and Miss May Williams will leave next week for their summer home at New London, Conn., which is such a charming rendezvous for society there. Later on in the summer they may go abroad.

Miss Lizzie Sherman will spend the summer with her sister, Mrs. Paul Thorndyke of Boston, at a small suburban place near that city called Hartford.

A second daughter was born to Ambassador and Mrs. Patenotre Monday last. The baby is such a charming rambunctious little thing. Later on in the summer they may go abroad.

Cape May cottage for the summer. Mrs. Gordon McKay called today for France, and will, as usual, spend the summer abroad.

Miss Virginia Butler left town today and will spend the summer traveling in England and Sweden, sailing next month.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hall and Miss Ethelwyn R. Hall have removed to Fairfield, on the Chevy Chase railroad, for the summer. Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Walsh entertained the Mississippi Association at their beautiful country home, on the Bethesda road, Wednesday evening. The house and grounds were brilliant with light, and the doctor and his charming wife were zealous in their efforts to make the large assembly of guests comfortable. Mr. and Mrs. Paines gave a paper on the life and ancestry of Robert E. Lee. General Catchings of Mississippi and Representative Clark of Alabama made pleasant remarks to the program.

Miss Pegram, secretary; Mrs. S. F. Ramsey, corresponding secretary; Miss Emon Brink, treasurer. An elegant collation was afterward enjoyed, at which the son and daughter of the house assisted their parents in serving.
